I DARE NOT DOUBT God's love when loved ones travel on and on that zigzag path of sin—downward; when prayers and tears do not avail and the answer seems so long delayed. I must remember the story of the prodigal that came from the Master's lips. It tells us of the father as well as the prodigal. That wanderer traveled far in moral distance from home. But the reckoning time arrived and he came to himself. His sin had found him out—empty, inadequate, and sinful. Now desire arose to travel back to the land and home he once despised, even to settle for a servant's place. What a meeting of father and son! And what a restoration! For the father's heart was glad too, and read the truth beneath the young man's rags and shame.

In C. S. Lewis' account of his own conversion (Surprised by Joy) he confesses that he did not return to God like the prodigal, walking on his own feet. He described his return rather as one “who is brought in kicking, struggling, resentful, and darting his eyes in every direction for a chance to escape.”

But George MacDonald warns us that God will not force our hand even when He sends the fierce tempests of life to besiege the soul of man. He writes, “Nor will God force any door to enter in. He may send a tempest about the house; the wind of His admonishment may burst doors and windows, yea, shake the house to its foundations; but not then, not so, will He enter. The door must be opened with the willing hand, ere the foot of love will cross the threshold. He watches to see the door move from within. Every tempest is but an assault in the siege of love. The terror of God is but the other side of His love, it is love outside that would be inside—love that knows no house, only a place until it enters.”

Francis Thompson writes of the divine quest out of his own agonizing experience when he describes the Spirit of God as the Hound of Heaven. He writes:

I fled Him, down the nights and down the days;
I fled Him, down the arches of the years;
I fled Him, down the labyrinthine ways Of my own mind; and in the mist of tears
I hid from Him.

But Thompson heard those feet of divine mercy in hot pursuit:

But with unhurrying chase,
And unperturbed pace,
Deliberate speed, majestic instancy,
They beat—and a Voice beat
More instant than the Feet beat
"All things betray Thee, who betrayest Me."

General Superintendent Young
AS I DROVE toward home one late autumn afternoon from pastoral visitation I thought upon the grace-given, Blood-bought, love-laden way of holiness. “While I was musing the fire burned,” and the blessed Holy Ghost sweetly communed with my heart, suggesting and applying a sermonette relating to this altogether lovely way that leads the soul heavenward. The simple outline was:

I. It is a Bible way.
II. It is a beautiful way.
III. It is a blessed way.

It at once appeared to my mind that much genuine truth was expressed in so brief an outline. To begin, no religious teaching that is not in total and plain agreement with the Holy Bible can be tolerated. The great doctrine of entire sanctification—“the second blessing rightly so-called”—is no exception to this rule. Do we possess a clear “Thus saith the Lord” for our major doctrine? If so, it must be easily discovered, for the Lord wills that His holy way must be so plain that “the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein” (Isaiah 35:8).

I have often suggested to congregations across the land that they take pencils with red lead and mark in the New Testament such words as “perfect,” “holy,” “holiness,” “pure,” “clean,” “sanctify,” and “sanctification.” I have then challenged them to count the number of New Testament books in which any or all of these words are found. I have asked the people to read each verse in which they occur. Such a prayerful reading of the Bible will convince any fair-minded person of the fact that the Bible teaching of a life of holiness does really exist.

Each doctrine we preach must be in accord with the whole teaching of the New Testament. No interpretation of one particular passage can be true if it causes that passage to be in any contradiction with another. As an example of this, to make Romans 3:9-18 apply to Christians is in total and dreadful contradiction to such scriptures as I John 1:7 and 3:8-9! A careful examination of Acts 2:1-20 in the light of the Gospels’ account of the call of the apostles will at once show us that the glorious, Heaven-sent baptism with the Holy Ghost and fire is something following and in addition to the new birth and given only to converted individuals for the specific purpose of evangelism.

The Holy Spirit, secondly, spoke to my heart of the beautiful way of holiness! The Old Testament speaks of the “beauty of holiness.” No life is so lovely and enticing as one that is sweet and mellow and holy with the very elixir of heaven exuding from its daily conduct. Holy living gives proof of the power of the gospel. Hypocritical, sinful living by a professor of Christ makes the gospel of none effect and brings a blasphemous reproach on the Lord Jesus Christ.

We live in an age of skepticism. Our educational system in this day is based on the scientific demand for specific proof. No longer are the statements of the pulpit taken at face value. The spirit of this Laodicean age has made the word of the preacher something to be challenged, even doubted. When, however, the tired, sinful, disillusioned old world sees a holy life flowing in rivers of perfect love from a purified heart, matching the testimony of the saints and the sermon of the minister, a much stronger appeal to salvation is presented. The death of a suffering, yet unmurmuring, saint places a holy quietness on physicians, nurses, hospital attendants, and visitors alike! I have known powerful works of saving grace to flow from just such holy living and dying.

Wesley was right when he said that two ways are set before each child of God at the new birth, a high way and a low way. I believe with Spurgeon that there is a way almost unknown to the average professor, a way that is associated with the

“My own experience has been that there are some enjoyments, some distractions, some ways of spending my time, from which I must firmly turn aside, if I am going to keep the Spirit alive within me. I can say nothing against them in the abstract; they may be innocent enough in themselves, they may even be all right for other people; but I know myself well enough to be sure that I cannot afford to indulge in them without danger of losing the Pearl of Great Price. They are like the weeds in our gardens. There is nothing wrong with the weeds in themselves. Each of them has its own humbly honourable place among our flora. But we dare not let them grow where they are, lest they choke the tender plants which the garden is intended to nurture.”—John Baillie.

TOKEN GIFTS

AT LIMBE, NYASALAND, soon to be Malewi, the African pastors and people desired to give me a present. They asked Enoch Litswele, whom I was to ordain, to make the speech for all. He could readily have done it in English, for he served as a very capable interpreter for me. But all must hear the words spoken in their language, so Maurice Hall translated for my benefit. He wanted to illustrate the idea that the choice gift I was to receive was nothing as compared to their love for me, my message, and the church that had sent me and the bearers of the good tidings to him and his people. To do so he said, "When I was married my friends and those of my bride brought many nice gifts. But some brought us feathers. They knew these were without value. They said, however, This is a promise that when the time is right we will bring you a chicken. That will be our real gift to wish you well."

Enoch's words made me ask myself if what I give to God is only a token like feathers; and to search my soul to make sure that I do not give only a promise, which I never fulfill in total consecration of my all for the sake of Christ and His kingdom.

Our tokens of love and devotion are good if we do not stop there. They are useless as feathers if we do not give our all. Yea, they may be only idle words and false, to be accounted for at God's great judgment seat. Will our offerings of thanks and our Alabaster boxes mock and condemn us in the last great day? God asks for a living sacrifice.

The Spanish Church of the Nazarene in Stanford, Connecticut, has 51 members and is pastored by Rev. Joaquin Rodriguez. It represents the work of the Spanish East, U.S.A., District, one of 3 foreign mission districts within the borders of the continental United States. The district has a total of 7 organized churches, of which 3 are fully self-supporting, and 3 preaching points in addition. There are 206 full and 32 probationary members. The district works in an area extending from Rochester, New York, to Newark, New Jersey, in which it is estimated there are at least one million Puerto Ricans in addition to other Spanish-speaking people. Rev. Harold L. Hampton is the district superintendent.
What Is CARNALITY?

THE BIBLE establishes the fact of carnality, giving us a picture of it, and places it under condemnation.

The Fact of Carnality

To deny the fact of carnality would be a denial of the truth of a Bible teaching. To fail to recognize that a sinful disposition remains in the heart of the regenerated man, and often has, led to serious harm in the church and in the individual’s life.

Paul recognized carnality in the Corinthian church and wrote: “And 1, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal” (1 Corinthians 3:1). James recognized the fact and said, “Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded” (James 4:8). The forgiveness of sin, represented by clean hands, was not sufficient. The forgiven man still had two minds: the mind of the flesh and the mind of the Spirit. And, in addition, he said, “A double-minded man is unstable in all his ways” (James 1:8)—a truly tragic condition.

The life of sin and the law of sin are not the same. The one is the parent of the other. The life of sin is the harvest of the law of sin in the heart. The law of sin is not something from without; it is from within. And so long as the law of sin is in the human heart, the life of sin will continue, or will soon return. Paul said: “For I delight in the law of God after the inward man: but I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of which is in my members” (Romans 7:22-23). The law of sin is opposed to the spiritual life and maintains a constant warfare against it. The law of sin is not passive; it is a militant force.

Is there a remedy for it? Yes. Thank God there is. “O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death? I thank God, who giveth me strength through Jesus Christ our Lord” (Romans 7:24-25). There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit” (Romans 8:1).

The Face of Carnality

The speaker who meant to say, “Sin has many facets,” was entirely right when he said by mistake, “Sin has many faces.”

The Face of Infancy. “I . . . could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk, and not with meat: for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able. For ye are yet carnal” (1 Corinthians 3:1-3). The law of sin remaining in the regenerate heart keeps the Christian in the state of infancy. He must be fed with milk. How sad to see Christians remain babes in the things of Christ when long since they should have grown to adulthood!

The Face of Dissension. “There is among you envying, and strife, and divisions” (1 Corinthians 3:3). Without doubt, all strife within the church comes by way of carnal Christians. When churches split, it is not due to the spiritual, sanctified Christian, but it is due to the carnal, unsanctified Christian. When carnality rules, it ruins. One carnal person on the board, one carnal person in a place of leadership and authority can cause more harm than all the worldliness and sin without the church. Peaceful coexistence with carnality is not possible. It will not cooperate nor consider others.

The Face of Prejudice. “One saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos” (1 Corinthians 3:4). Strange how fond carnality becomes of the departing pastor! Carnality will light the pastor as long as he remains in the pulpit. After he is gone, carnality will parade him before the new preacher and make him the example of all that the new preacher should do and should not do. Carnality will never accept a preacher as a man of God and an instructor in spiritual things.

The Fault of Carnality

Enmity: “The carnal mind is enmity against God” (Romans 8:7). In the regenerated but unsanctified heart there lurks an enemy to God. It is not only opposed to certain spiritual truths, nor to certain things in the church, but an enemy to all truth—an enemy to God. It will fight against everything God is for. It is an ally to the devil himself. It is the essence of sin itself.

Anarchy: “For it is not subject to the law of God” (Romans 8:7). Carnality is in rebellion against God. It will not allow God to be Sovereign in the heart. It will not allow Jesus Christ to occupy the throne room of the soul. It has placed itself above God. It constantly struggles to overthrow the rule of God in the life. Carnality will never submit to the demands and claims of God upon the life. Monarchs have always crushed re-hellion. They have never allowed insubordination. Is God less than an earthly monarch that anarchy should remain in His domain? Yet many Christians are satisfied to allow it to be so.

Offensive: "They that are in the [carnal] flesh cannot please God" (Romans 8:8). To say that God is pleased with carnal people is to fail to grasp the significance of this passage of scripture. It tells us that God is not pleased with carnality. To allow the principle of anarchy to remain in the heart is an offense to God. God has planned for us a redemption which not only takes care of the sins committed but the principle of sin in the heart also.

Condemned: "God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, . . . condemned sin in the flesh" (Romans 8:3).

Carnality is under condemnation. The Christian becomes responsible for the sinful nature after God has given him light. The individual who allows this principle of sin to remain is under constant condemnation. God has provided a remedy for it through the blood of Jesus Christ. "It would be an imperfect redemption," said G. Campbell Morgan, "if God had not provided a remedy for sin in the heart as well as for sin breaking forth from that sin." And he is absolutely right. But God has provided the remedy; hence the condemnation when inner sin is allowed to remain.

Death: "For to be carnally minded is death" (Romans 8:6). Needless to say, there will be pull back into the old life if carnality is allowed to remain. Sin will not be confined to the hear alone; it will break out into acts of sin and degradation, and the "wages of sin is death."

Carnality cannot be successfully suppressed. Suppression is not the remedy nor the answer. Surrender to God is the remedy. "Make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you" (1 Peter 5:10).

These men express the sincere desire of every true shepherd of the flock. We must have the evangelistic waves and times of seeking, but these must be followed by establishment and settling in grace and holy virtues. Our people need to be aware of the peril of disclaiming the initial vows made at the altar of consecration, and at the same time learn the rewards in consistent living.

The hope of the backslider is held out by the Prophet Jeremiah in the plea, "Turn, O backsliding children, saith the Lord; for I am married unto you" (Jeremiah 3:14). But we must never forget that the benefits of such a relationship are reaped only by a mutual reverence and flawless regard for the initial vows. Perhaps the most bitter experience at the judgment will be to look into the face of Him who took us at our word when we have been untrue.

There's a grace that will establish you, my brother,
If you will dig down deep and strike the Rock.

By PAUL C. ANDRUS, Pastor, Lookout Valley Church, Chattanooga, Tennessee
“I SEE NOTHING WRONG with gambling; after all, the Bible doesn’t mention it.” This was the reply of a young man who was being counseled by his pastor.

He is one of a total of fifty million Americans who were in attendance at the race tracks in our country last year, betting a total of four billion dollars, part of an estimated total of fifty billion dollars per year squandered in games of chance. Excitement, diversion, reversion, compulsion, and neuroses are among the various explanations for the gambling urge.

It all begins, regardless of how it is later explained, with a desire on the part of someone to get something for nothing, whether it is the grade-schooler playing marbles “for keeps” or the business tycoon wagering a large fortune. No one of sound mind would compare gambling with anything other than covetousness, a direct transgression of the tenth commandment.

“In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground” (Genesis 3:19), was the sentence passed on to Adam after his sin. Anything less than this is unacceptable and less than honorable.

“Gambling is a cancer.” So states a leading article in a national magazine. If we take this literally, we are admitting that gambling has neither a known cause nor a sure cure. In some ways, it is like a cancer. It is no respecter of age, sex, or social standing. In the numbers pools, check pools, and drawings for the checks at countless lunch counters and coffee breaks, plus other multiplied forms of gambling, Americans of all ages spend half as much annually “for the fun of it” as they do for all public and private education combined. This amount includes legalized gambling as well as illegal expenditures for everything from office pools to check pools among some public school teachers, and even a regular numbers racket in some large parishes.

This brings into focus another side of the problem. Several states are now considering making the numbers racket legal in one form or another. The contention is that people are going to gamble anyway. That’s just about as sensible as saying, “Certain people are going to commit murder. Let’s set up a legalized ‘Murder, Incorporated.’ ”

Gambling pays off! But where does it finally pay off? It pays off in broken homes, ill-fed and underclothed families, insufficient finances for educational purposes, and many other direct and visible inadequacies of the gambler’s resources.

This is in addition to related crime, prostitution, narcotics, racketeering, and other evils which are controlled or directed by fourteen hundred American citizens, according to the office of the United States Attorney General.

What is the answer? Certainly we are going to have to take a long, hard look at all aspects of this issue if we are going to find even the beginnings of a solution. Nothing so far-flung as is this many-sided social evil can be approached from any one direction with ease or assurance.

First, we must recognize that gambling is not a disease; it is a symptom. The disease lies behind the motives and the drives which cause men, women, and young people to squander their money, their property, and their virtue. The causes may be psychological; they may be carnal. Or they may be a combination of these drives. We must acknowledge this and begin to believe that there is a cause and also a cure.

Second, we must turn the light of responsibility on the closest-knit of all social groups—the home. It is terribly ineffective to try to get children to see the wrong in gambling when Dad comes home from the office or shop with the money he has won in a check pool.

The next greatest influence should be the number three target in this fight against chance. This brings us to the public schools in our land. Gambling and sports do not mix, ethically, morally, or in good sportsmanship. Athletic contests will always be an easy target for corruption and pay-offs as long as the slightest amount of gambling in schools is tolerated. Students need to see in their instructors men and women above reproach.

We must further realize that this moral paralysis did not spring up overnight. Nor will we execute a solution in a few months or perhaps even a few years. But we can begin now.

We can preach giving instead of greed.
We can offer understanding instead of odds.
We can see that our lives present to young people the example of a challenge instead of a chance.

We can portray by our daily witness the thrill, the adventure, the opportunity for fulfillment in Christian stewardship which is summed up in the words of Jesus: “Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these [other] things shall be added unto you” (Matthew 6:33).

CHRISTIAN VOCATION SERIES

The New Life
By PAUL E. JOHNSON

Paul Johnson is assistant professor of agricultural engineering in the School of Agriculture of Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana, now on leave of absence with the U.S. Agency for International Development and assigned to Orissa University, Bhubaneswar, India, about two hundred seventy miles south of Calcutta on the east coast. Professor and Mrs. Johnson have two married daughters in the States; and Priscilla, age seventeen, and David, age fourteen, with them. In the States, Professor Johnson served as Sunday school superintendent in the local church.

MANY THINGS come to mind when one thinks of new life—newborn bodies, spring flowers, second wind in athletic contests. But in this case it means conversion—complete conversion. I have read many accounts of personal conversions and many people have told me of their conversions, but no two ever have been alike.

Nothing stirs my heart any more than to hear the personal testimony of how Christ has come into a human heart and transformed the life. A person has been self-centered, greedy, out to get all that is coming to him and then more. Then through some personal testimony by a friend or some other means he was confronted with Christ. The Holy Spirit spoke to the heart and revealed the true intent of the heart and mind.

This was true in my life. I had been brought up in a church and had attended services, when convenient, for forty years. I knew about Christ dying on the Cross for our sins and that all we had to do was “believe.” I always compared myself to my fellow church members and, in my sight, I was as good as if not better than the majority of them! Many of them were doing things that I would not do.

Time and space will not permit me to give the details that led me face to face with Christ. On April 15, 1953, the Holy Spirit came into my life and I have never been the same since then. My opinion of myself changed. I realized that I was just a sinner saved by the grace of God. The eighth verse of the first chapter of Isaiah was the verse that struck my heart: “Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool.” This verse became a personal invitation of Christ to me to come, and I am so glad I accepted.

My entire outlook on life changed. The things I once held important now seemed unimportant. The things I held unimportant now took first place in my life.

At the time of my conversion I was teaching approximately one hundred students at Purdue. The next test I gave the students, as I laid the test papers on the vacant desks before class started I found myself praying for each student individually. The class members had ceased to be numbers on my roll, but now were individuals.

I believe the Holy Spirit will do the unusual for us when we first start the new life. This is to establish us in walking with Him by faith. Many changes took place in our home, and one of them was the establishing of a family altar—a time of reading God’s Word and praying together as a family. God has blessed us individually and as a family, and has always honored His Word.

One time in our family worship, I felt impressed to pray for a Purdue service staff member. We had a wonderful time reading the Bible and I well remember my wife and I, and each of our four children, praying for this individual. The next day while I was working at my desk he walked into my office and said, “Were you praying for me last night?”

It took me by surprise, and it was so accusing; but in a moment I found myself and answered, “Yes, in our family prayer period last night you were the central figure.”

He said, “I thought so. Last night I was so heavily under conviction that I had to go into a closet, close the door, and cry out to God to have mercy on my soul.”

Blessed be the name of Jesus! This incident increased my faith and helped me to see the power of prayer.

The Holy Spirit in my life is a stabilizing Force and keeps me on the track when differences come within the church and in my profession. The secret of success of the new life is the power of the Holy Spirit in the life. He is ever near and many, many times has kept me from going down in utter despair. He is the One to whom I have taken personal problems, and He always has been ready and willing to meet my needs. So, without fear or reservation, I can recommend Him to any with whom I come in contact, and give them His promise, “I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.”
THE TRAGIC STORY of Haman in the Book of Esther may be told in four parts, each denoting an attitude of body: Haman stood in the court (6:5); Haman sat with the king (3:15); Haman fell (7:8); and Haman was hanged (7:10).

What cataclysmic turn of events brought him from the lofty position at court to the high place on the gallows? His fate was wrought, in a word, by prejudice.

Haman is one of the best examples of prejudice to be found in Biblical or secular history. He is the prototype of the prejudiced. Before Antiochus Epiphanes, before Hitler, was Haman.

A close scrutiny of the Haman story shows that it treats accurately and completely all of the elements included and involved in the nature of prejudice that are known to present-day sociologists and psychologists. How true is the Bible in portraying human nature! How accurate, how scientific is the Word of God!

Through this enemy of the Jews, God teaches us three important facts about prejudice. First, prejudice is irrational. Angry with Mordecai, Haman decided to kill all the Jews. Irate at the refusal of one man to render obeisance, he attacks all innocent men, women, and babies who do not mimic Mordecai’s attitude are to be persecuted because they resemble Mordecai in another area. All of us are quick to recognize this as tabloid thinking, as stereotyping, and are quick and loud in our affirmation that it is illogical and unfair.

God’s Word goes on to teach us that prejudice is murder. Haman’s dictum aimed to wipe out all the Jews: “to destroy, to kill, and to cause to perish, all Jews, both young and old, little children and women, in one day…” (3:13).

A third truth that we come face to face with is that prejudice destroys the prejudiced. First, prejudice robbed Haman of his peace of mind. More important than wealth or sleep to Haman was his feeling against the Jews. Next, it robbed him of his position among men. When Haman fell on the couch it was mockingly symbolic of his fall from power. Here is a clear-cut case of a haughty spirit before a fall, and pride before destruction.

If you shrink in horror from the blood-lust of Haman’s plot, recall that it began with a feeling, an attitude, a spoken word. Innuedo is the beginning of persecution. The frightening thing about Eichmann, states his biographer, is that he looked like any other man.

There is nothing new about prejudice. Peter and Cornelius knew about it. Jesus and the woman at the well were keenly aware of it. We must do what they did, and apply specific Christian teaching to human relationships by our attitude and behavior. The compassion of Christ must replace the hate of Haman. “Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him” (1 John 3:15).

We Are in a MORAL CRISIS!

By Sunday School Evangelist A. S. LONDON

THE MASSES probably do not realize it, but we are in a moral crisis over our nation. We are in a time marked by the alarming increase of dope addicts and of the sex-obsessed, an immoral wave that is sweeping over our land as never before in our history.

The bitter fruits of our condition may be seen any day, in almost every nook and corner of our country: the bribed athlete, the wild teen-agers, the rapist, the murderer, the filthy, dirty literature that is enough to poison the youth who are reading these fifteen million publications monthly.

We are floundering in moral confusion, in a society of license and brutality.

My own city is having one crime after another, so brutal as to shock the entire state and nation. We are steeped in degradation, as horrible as the atrocities of foreign countries in times of war.

J. Edgar Hoover says, “These signs of moral decay, tolerated by adults, cannot help but debase the thinking of our impressionable teen-agers.”

Historians tell us that Sodom was a place where all restraint in matters of sex was gone. It is my honest thought that we have reached this state in the lustful, sex perversions and plain poison, as found on the newstands, in grocery stores, drugstores, and wherever the pornographic filth is sold.

There is enough trashy literature in our nation to corrupt our youth as an ever-growing cancer of rottenness and corruption. Young people cannot read the filth of our day, view its films, and indulge in stories in which honesty and virtue, chastity and clean living are ridiculed—and still come out upright young men and women. “First the thought, then the act,” is a basic law of human beings.

There is but one thing that will save us from a complete moral decay, and that is a revival of the Christian religion that changes the inner life and outward conduct of young and old.

Unless the trend reverses and that soon, we are as surely headed for a catastrophe as foreign nations that went down like cracker boxes because of moral rottenness. Our problem is a national problem. It is all over the nation, from coast to coast, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf.

It is said that a nation is known by what it reads. If that is correct, then God knows we are almost on the bottom. Toynbee, the historian, once declared that twenty-one nations as civilized as we are collapsed. Nineteen of these nations went down, not from outside forces, but from a moral rottenness inside their own boundaries.

Will our bubble burst? Will the church people of our nation arise and do something to clean up the newstands of our country and help save our youth before they go over the precipice from which millions will never return? God grant that it may be so!

WORDS or Power

For our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost (1 Thessalonians 1:5).

NO ONE CAN DENY the power of words. We can bless or curse, help or hinder, put men on their feet or help to knock them off their feet. Who can measure the harm done to the cause of God by gossip, idle words, half-truths, and exaggerated tales from a carnal imagination? There are eyes red from weeping and pillows wet with tears because of slanderous tongues. The devil has no more effective tool than the tongue of the troublemaker and the church gossip.

On the other hand, it was said of Job, “Thy words have upheld him that was falling” (Job 4:4), or as another has translated, “Your words have kept men on their feet.” No finer testimony could be given concerning a man’s words than that they were uplifting to the fallen. Who can measure the worth of that word of encouragement when all seemed lost? How much the word of sympathy has meant in time of sorrow, trouble, or loss! What power in the word of a friend expressing confidence when defeat lay so heavy upon the heart!

Every man should guard carefully his tongue. The words we speak are a revelation of our character, education, background, and emphasis of life. How admirable the man who can remain silent when he should, and yet can speak when the occasion demands it, with wisdom and clarity!

Nevertheless, though the power of words cannot be denied, there always comes a time when words are not enough. For a hundred years there has been talk of equality for the Negro. Now, weary of talk, the Negro is demanding something more. There comes a time in every life when words must either be replaced or at least supplemented by action. It applies in every realm of life, but nowhere is it more applicable than in the realm of Christianity.

“Talk is cheap,” says the skeptic. “I’d rather see a sermon than hear one any day.” Neither remark is altogether accurate, but both are forceful reminders that the gospel was never intended as word only. It has in it a power; and when it is stripped of its power, it becomes a “form of godliness,” smothered in a multitude of words and shorn of its usefulness in the hearts and lives of men.

The power of the gospel is centered in the Holy Ghost. Shut Him out of the life of the Church and the source of power is closed. Let Him have His way and the power of the gospel is unleashed in all its beauty and effectiveness. The hindrance is in not letting the Holy Spirit have His way; for when He has His way, it will begin with sacrifice and consecration and result in purity and power. It is so much easier to talk than it is to pray or give or sacrifice. We must determine what we desire most—words or power.

The proof of our Christianity is not in the words we speak, as important and powerful as they are, but in the demonstration of the power of the Holy Spirit. When Columbus returned to Spain following what he thought was the discovery of the “back door” to India, he took with him as proof of his discovery some “Indians.” We know now that they were not really “Indians” at all, but “Americans.” Nevertheless no one could dispute his claim of Columbus, for his proof was not in the words he spoke—though doubtless they could have filled many a book as he recounted his experiences on the “high seas”—but in the fact that he had living witnesses to prove his claim. And that is what Christianity needs today—living witnesses to prove its claims.

It is doubtful that we will ever prove our Christianity to a lost and skeptical world with words. But a life that proves the claims of Christ by demonstrating love in hate, joy in sorrow, peace in turmoil, and utter disregard for the gods of this world—materialism, success, or whatever they may be—will be a living demonstration of power that cannot be denied.

Joy! Often on the Master’s lips!

And we must know its power,
The mystic therapy it brings
In every lonely hour.

Here is Christ’s word! Will we not know,
In spite of grief and sin,

Joy like a fire that warms our hearts—
When we find Christ within!

Beyond Two Works of Grace

THEORETICALLY we have always believed that holiness is both crisis and process, the work of a moment and the program for a lifetime thereafter. Practically, it is not at all sure that we have realized the meaning of growth in grace. The result has been that many have acted as if entire sanctification were a dead-end road instead of a highway to infinity.

That we who have preached this grace are somewhat at fault will have to be granted. We have been so anxious for all of our people to experience the second blessing that we have failed to say much to and about those who have entered in. The result has been that we have made holiness sound like a destination instead of a starting point, a goal instead of a guide for the journey.

WITHOUT LESSENING a clear-cut emphasis on the divine work whereby the heart of the believer is cleansed and filled with power and perfect love, we need to give more attention to the divine workings whereby the sanctified are led to ever greater understanding, love, faith, stability, and saintliness. Perhaps Paul’s language will help us here where he speaks of being “sealed with that holy Spirit of promise” as “the earnest of our inheritance” (Ephesians 1:13-14)—the “earnest” being the deposit or pledge of more to follow.

This is the challenge to holy living beyond conversion and entire sanctification. As hard as it may be for us to grasp it, the Kilde compares the relationship between Christ and His sanctified people to the relationship between a husband and his wife. “Husbands, love your wives,” we read, “even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it: that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word” (Ephesians 5:25-26).

This simply means that the experience of sanctifying grace at the altar is the wedding. The life which follows is the marriage. There is obviously much more to marriage than the wedding ceremony. And the real value of the ceremony is learned only during the years of companionship and deepening devotion which follow.

The sanctified Christian will fail miserably who does not commit himself to continual growth. One of the fathers of the holiness movement said, “He who thinks himself as much like God now as he ever can be, must certainly have lost sight of the distance between the finite and the infinite. A child may at its birth possess the image of his father, but in physical, mental, and moral status, he is incomparably below his father.”

THERE ARE SEVERAL AREAS in which growth in sanctifying grace must go on. Of one of these we are reminded immediately by Peter’s words, “But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ” (II Peter 3:18). We are to grow in spiritual understanding, in the knowledge of Christ and of God’s ways with men.

Some of this understanding comes by experience, the hard but really necessary way. More of it comes through the systematic study of the Word of God, through preaching, and through the reading of devotional books and papers. And a very precious part of it comes directly from the Holy Spirit, part of whose mission is to teach and to guide into all truth.

We may grow in love, sympathy, and compassion. John Wesley wrote in his Plain Account of Christian Perfection, “Settle it then in your heart, that from the moment God has saved you from all sin you are to aim at nothing more, but more of that love described in the thirteenth of I Corinthians.”

In what Edwin C. Lewis called “the logic of love” is the fact that love is capable of being at the same time perfect and yet growing. Indeed, if it does not grow, it is not perfect—for a love which does not deepen in devotion and increase in range is fast on the way to becoming indifference or downright aversion.

Finally, we may grow in that almost indefinable character best described as Christlikeness or saintliness. This is hard to describe but easy to recognize. It consists in a certain radiance of spirit, a serenity of soul, a growing and unselfish interest in others with a desire to help and to share, and a thoughtfulness and consideration for those around us.

It was said that the goal of ancient Christians was “to renounce mediocrity and aim at holiness.” These two are one. He who makes both holiness of heart and of life his aim can never be ordinary or mediocre. Saints in fact as well as in name are a rare and precious commodity.

IF WE FAIL to see beyond two works of grace, we fall into a very subtle snare of the enemy. We tend to become critical and demanding of others, and lax and careless ourselves. As Irwin Brown wrote in Further Insights into Holiness:

"My observation of actual conditions in Christian life leaves me persuaded that in theory we make allowances for shortcomings in new converts but in practice we are quick to condemn any such conduct. In theory we accept the idea of growth in grace; in practice we make no allowance for it. Our theology seems to break down at the point of experience. This may account for the falling away of many young converts. They not only have to contend with temptations and mistakes but with mistreatment by older Christians. More is demanded of them than they are able to give. Mature Christian conduct is expected of them while they are still infants in Christ. We expect them to digest strong meat whereas they need the milk of the Word."

Along with this there is apt to be the twin evil of complacency and satisfaction with ourselves and our own attainments. We may thank God we are not as other men are without realizing how far short we fall of being the kind of men we ought to be. One sure mark of the immature is the conceit of wisdom beyond what has really been gained. Thank God for two works of grace that deal with the sin problem, both outer and inner. At the same time, let us not lose sight of what lies beyond. Let us firmly fix in mind that conversion and entire sanctification mark the end of our search for the right road. They mark the beginning of the spiritual journey.

Contact Without Compromise

It is all too easy to confuse separation from the world with isolation from the world’s people, the very ones we are left on this earth to help redeem. We need to be reminded often that we are followers of One who was known as the Friend of publicans and sinners.

Our problem, of course, is how to keep our protest against sin and worldliness from becoming dislike for sinners and worldlings. It is not too hard to work up indignation over the abounding sin in our society. It is more difficult to display a grace that abounds even more.

It is here we need so much to understand and follow the example of Christ. He was perfect righteousness, holy and without the taint of sin. He was fully of the nature of God. Yet He was at the same time perfect manliness, tempted in all points like as we are, apart from sin. He drew aside to spend nights in communion with God. He delighted in the society of His chosen friends. Yet He mingled with the crowds, went to their weddings and their leasts, and spoke so that the common people heard Him gladly.

One struggles for ways to describe this being in and near and yet not of the world. It has been said that there are two ways of keeping electric power from shorting out. One is to spread the wires far apart, so that they have no physical contact, on opposite ends of a long arm at the top of a pole. This is isolation. Another way is to wrap the wires with material which will not conduct electricity. They may then run side by side without shorting out the circuit. This is insulation.

God’s method is pre-eminently that of insulation. "I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil" (John 17:15). Taking them out of the world would be isolation, separation by distance. Keeping them in the world is insulation, separation by the enveloping safety of the sanctifying Spirit (John 17:16-17). In this is contact without compromise.

Something for the Children

A once-a-month feature throughout this year appears for the first time on page 19 of this issue. It is a page designed for the children, prepared by Gloria Ramquist Willingham and entitled "A Note from Gloria." Mrs. Willingham is the author of God Wants You, a charming and effective book for children just learning to read. We trust the Herald series will prove helpful to parents (and grandparents) in teaching spiritual truths to the young.

Moving Nazarenes

"... I was a stranger, and ye took me in: . . . Iviust as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me" (Matthew 25:35-40). Moving is a difficult job. Nazarenes can make the load a little lighter by welcoming "Moving Nazarenes" to their church services. It helps a lot if someone from the church can call on the family sometime during the first week that they are in their new location.

DISTRICT ACTIVITIES

New Church Organizations Reported

Montgomery, Alabama, Capital City Church, December 5, 1963. Rev. L. S. Oliver, pastor—L. S. Oliver, district superintendent.

THE LOCAL CHURCHES

Rev. R. D. Horine, pastor at Haleysburg, Indiana, on the Southwest Indiana District, died December 12, 1963, of a heart attack. He is survived by his wife; mail will reach her c/o Helen Salter, 3819 Alpine, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Wheelersburg, Ohio—Rev. W. W. Weldon, pastor of this church for the past fifteen and a half years, has been forced to resign because of ill health; he has never received a negative vote. God has blessed the church and, since last July, we have received seventeen members, fifteen by profession of faith; all district budgets are paid in full, and one-half of the General Budget. Our three-year allotment of $1,984 for the science building at Olivet College is paid in full, and all church property is free of debt. Brother Weldon has expressed his appreciation to members and friends of the church for their loyalty during these years—Recoverer.

Tullahoma, Tennessee—On December 8 the Mount Vernon Church closed an outstanding revival. A number of people found the Lord in both pardon and heart purity, and two new families were reached in this meeting. God graciously blessed and used the ministry of Evangelist C. E. Haden in this work. Since this church was organized two years ago, in an old schoolhouse, the Lord has blessed pastor and people. We are now worshiping in our new church, a 40 x 70-foot structure, and bills are being paid as they come due. Interest and attendance are increasing each week.—Floyd L. Miles, Pastor.
Evangelist F. D. Wolfe writes: "I have some open time in the fall, and would like to slate this in the Midwest or East. Write me, c/o our Publishing House, P.O. Box 527, Kansas City, Missouri 64114."

Rev. R. T. Sellick writes: "After fourteen years in full-time evangelism, I am now traveling the pastorate of our Summertime church on Prince Edward Island. I wish to express my appreciation to all the district superintendents, pastors, and laity who cooperated with me. I have preached in three hundred revivals, camps, and rallies, preaching nearly five thousand times. I give God thanks for the souls won for the Kingdom."

Watsonville, California—The Lord wonderfully used Evangelist J. J. Steele in our recent revival. His Spirit-filled messages were well accepted and applied to individual needs. Over two thousand were saved, made, or one-half of them by our aggressive junior-high-age class. Our church has moved up spiritually as a result of this meeting, and one particular, miraculous answer to prayer has reached our hearts. Rev. Norvio O. Cliff has been our pastor since June of 1962. We give God praise for all His blessings.—Reaper.

Grand Forks, North Dakota—Recently this church enjoyed one of the most effective campaigns that has ever been conducted here. An estimated thirty-five cases of divine healing, Pastor and people in Salem and Crawfordville, Indiana; Hicksville, Ohio; Clay City, Kendallville, and Halesburg, Indiana; and Oaklawn Church in Danville, Illinois, have reported these cases. Naturally, some have asked for return engagements. We have some choice dates open after April 30. Write us, 301 Lincoln Avenue, Bedford, Indiana.

Evangelist Grant M. Barton reports: "I have found a small, strong, but faithful group of people. Feeling this was God's place for us, we prayed and fasted, and the attendance increased to a five-day average of eighty-five for July. We had a fine group of sixteen teen-agers in our youth department, and God's presence is manifest in our services. We are grateful for the many blessings to which we have been privileged. We have more than fifty years in the ministry, I have been with the Church of the Nazarene since 1936.

Bismarck, North Dakota—Our church recently held a very fine revival with Evangelist and Mrs. Vernie D. May as special workers. The Lord richly blessed their ministry in giving a total of eighty-six seekers. In answer to their prayers of fasting and eating (which had been conducting special prayer services for weeks) there were victorious altar services every night except the first. The church was wonderfully helped, and new people were won to the Lord. We hope to start our new building program soon.—David E. Frag, Pastor.

Sunday School Evangelists Lyle and Lois Potter report: "Our fall Sunday school crusades as well as district tours and conventions took us ten thousand miles, working on ten districts. The souls were made in New Mexico and Mississippi, while we worked in conventions at Chattanooga First, Tennessee; Orlando First and Pensacola, Florida; and Huntsville, Alabama. Local church Sunday school crusades were held in El Paso First, Texas; Phoenix, Maryvale, Arizona; Grenada, Hattiesburg, and Jackson First, Mississippi; Bingham First, Alabama; Marietta, Georgia; and Oaklawn Church in Danville, Illinois. These were ten thousand happy and wonderful miles, with the Lord near to inspire and bless in service after service."

Buvill, Idaho—After the work here being closed for three years, God worked a miracle here under the consecrated hands of Rev. Harold P. Gilliam in our "hunting for souls" campaign, supported by the Palouse Zone N.Y.P.S., and we saw the church revived, with the Holy Spirit visiting us in a special way. Revival meetings were conducted in the home and community, in answer to prayer and fasting on the part of our people. Souls were reached in their homes as well as in the church services. Many of our God friends contributed—Willis Walker and wife, Pastors.

Udall, Kansas—Recently our church had a great revival with Rev. Jimmie Allen as evangelist. There was genuine Holy Ghost conviction upon hearts, and on two nights we witnessed a real Pentecost. There was a chain reaction of seekers, the altar being filled three times in one night, and a total of forty people finding victory in God. We thank God for His blessings.—Curts Wurtz, Pastor.

On November 26, 1963, Rev. P. M. Henderson (retired Nazarene elder) and wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Both are past seventy years of age. Their friends gave them a surprise with refreshments and gifts: eighty-six for July. We have a fine publishing house address is 719 Court Street, Pasco, Washington.

Dr. and Mrs. A. S. London report: "It was a joy to be with Pastor C. Jones in our Central Church, St. Louis, Missouri, in a Sunday school convention. Pastor C. Jones of London, Missouri, had reached 'saturation point' in his school, but as a result of the convention it is broken now. We shall not soon forget the day at the Joplin District convention with Superintendent Dean Baldwin. Pastor J. R. Smith of Parsons, Kansas, is Sunday-school-minded; he has a good school with a beautiful church property. Pastor J. D. Cook has a school of nearly three hundred in Independence, Kansas. Pastor Harold Platter of Dundee Hills Church in Kansas City writes that they have had six new families attending since the convention. While there it was my privilege to be with President L. T. Corlett and speak in our Nazarene Theological Seminary.

Pastor C. K. Dillman writes from Clifton, Tennessee: "Coming here two years ago, Wife and I found a small, strong, but faithful group of people. Feeling this was God's place for us, we prayed and fasted, and the attendance increased to a five-day average of eighty-five for July. We had a fine group of sixteen teen-agers in our youth department, and God's presence is manifest in our services. We are grateful for the many blessings to which we have been privileged. With now more than fifty years in the ministry, I have been with the Church of the Nazarene since 1936.

Montgomery, Alabama—After only four months of existence, the Capital City Church of Messiah was organized on December 8 with District Superintendent L. S. Oliver presenting the right hand of fellowship to fifteen charter members. The service was crowned with the power and presence of God, and the people were greatly blessed by the message of Brother Oliver. All of us are enthusiastic about this new work.—Orciville Hall, Pastor.

Adrian, Michigan—First Church is moving ahead, wonderful spirit of cooperation, and new people finding victory in God. Since our coming here seventeen months ago 32 new members have been received. 24 of them are probationers. The Sunday school is at an all-time high, with a November average of 233. Recently the pastor received the second ten-dollar-per-week raise and all our property is being purchased for future enlarged parking area. We are serving a wonderful people, with a great challenge before us.

Rev. W. O. Wetton, Pastor.

West Columbia, South Carolina—Central Church is moving forward under the capable leadership of Rev. Jack M. Myers. He is loved by the people of the community, and is now serving as the 1963 President of the S.C. Ministerial Association, comprised of more than fifty churches. With God's help and our co-operative people we have purchased a beautiful, six-room, brick parsonage, all has been paid for in every department, with twenty-three members received by profession of faith during Brother Myers' two-year ministry here. In a recent seven-week building season we had a gain in attendance of thirty-six per Sunday above last year's average. A new record was set in our Thanksgiving offering—$13. The church has given the pastor a four-year call, also established a reserve fund so he and his family may attend the General Assembly in June.—J. S. Lee, Secretary.

Rev. William E. Clark writes: "After having served as pastor on the Southwest Indiana and Indianapolis districts for the past eight years, I have now entered the field of evangelism. I am an ordained elder and commissioned evangelist of the Hawaii District. I will go anywhere the Lord may lead, and do my best to win souls and be a blessing to the church. Write me, 4028 Patton Avenue, Indianapolis, Indiana 46220."

Rev. John A. Pavton has resigned as pastor of the Brawley church to accept a call to pastor the church in Vista, California. Pastor W. F. (Bill) Varian reports: "A little over four months ago we moved from Howell to the beautiful new Central Church in Flint, Michigan. We have been blessed with a wonderful group of converts and have been treated most kindly. During our seven-week Sunday school drive we averaged 321. All district budgets are paid to date, and building obligations have all been met. Our building and property would be evaluated at replacement of at least $800,000. Our people are optimistic, with faith in God. We thank the Lord for the privilege of working in this place of service."

Evangelist Joe Bishop reports: "During the past thirteen years in the field of evangelism I have traveled thousands of miles, and have preached in over three hundred of our churches, camps, and colleges. The year of 1963 was a good one, and I was busy preaching in six different states. God blessed and gave many souls praying through to victory. I love the Lord, and the Nazarenes are my people. I have some open dates in 1964, and will be glad to go anywhere the Lord may lead. I appreciate fine pastors and lacon. Write me. 1435 S. Jensen, Hill Reno, Oklahoma."

Rev. Joe Chastain writes: "On January 3 we started the eleventh church project. We find great pleasure in the service of the Master in this needy area. If you have contacts we should follow up, write us, 1671 Kaliulani General Delivery, Lakeland, Florida."

Evangelist Billy and Helen Smith report: "Now closing twenty-six years of Nazarene evangelism, we recently enjoyed two wonderful revivals; one in Willard, Ohio; the other in Paris, Pennsylvania. Night after night souls sought God at the altar of prayer. We are now in Florida and will be here until June 1. We have some open dates in the spring, also some available time for week end meetings in the state. We are glad to care for the music, preaching, and children's work. Write us, c/o General Deliver, Lakeland, Florida."

Rev. Virgil H. Few reports: "In 1962, I resigned as pastor of our good people in the Glen Road Church, Dayton, Ohio, and moved to Florida because of ill health. Later, feeling it to be God's will, I accepted the call to pastor the Fedora Church in St. Petersburg, and in January [1963] we had a good revival with Evangelists Ralph and Connie Swisher. We paid all budgets, and added eleven new members during the assembly year. In November of '63 we broke the old Sunday school attendance record twice, won the district trophy for greatest increase, and received twelve new members. God gave a gracious revival with Rev. Frank Roddy as evangelist. Plans are now under way for a new sanctuary.

Evangelist Thomas Hayes writes: "On March 15th [1961] I will be closing a revival at Watsonville, California; then have two open dates, March 18 to 29 and April 1 to 12. Following that I will be in Sevry, Kansas, then have an open date in May, with some open date for tent meetings (I have my own tent) in July and August. I thank God for His blessings, and am willing to go anywhere. Write me, c/o our Publishing House, P.O. Box 327, Kansas City, Missouri 64111."

Rev. William K. Clark writes: "After a very successful meeting in 1962, we held another meeting in 1963. This was a wonderful period of spiritual growth and increase. The night visit, however, could also be tied in with the fact that Jesus was so busy during that day; yet it would hardly hold that He would be so busy to have a session with a soul in need.

Whatever this Jewish ruler had, it wasn't enough. Like a younger "ruler" of that day, he lacked something yet Jesus showed him that it was not a matter of improving what he had, but trying to make himself better, but that he needed a transformation. He needed a regeneration, a "remaking alive" experience. When a strict observer of the law, he was not satisfied. There were spiritual ignorance and spiritual blindness on his part. Now he searched for the truth. He was a man of "doubt" for Jesus himself is "the truth" personified. He knows all the answers to our needs. He straightens out our question marks and makes them into explanation points.

There were several "musts" in what Jesus did and said. He "must" needs to go through Samaria; He "must" work the works of Him that sent Him; and He "must" be lifted up. But He makes use of this word to Nazarenes, and to all the rest of us. Whether we are up and out, or down and out, in either case we are out, for we "must" be born again. This is the fundamental truth in the Christian life. The basis for Christian character building. This is the requirement for entering into the Kingdom. It is the experience that gives the triumph. Until then we are, as Paul said, "dead in trespasses and sins." (Ephesians 2:1).

A rebirth spiritually means a regeneration of our desires, a remaking of the man until doing the right thing.

Deaths

MRS. SARAH ESTELLA NIELSON, wife of Rev. John N. Nielson, died November 10, 1963. She was the faithful helpmate of Brother Nielson for fourteen years of the Lord's service. Beside his tithe, he paid a goodly share on the organ for the church. He is survived by two sisters, five brothers, one half sister, and one half brother. Funeral service was held at the Bethel Tabernacle, Dallas, Texas, Rev. L. A. Wilson, assisted by a former pastor, Rev. E. F. Zollinger, and Rev. Harold Faye.

FRANK WOOLLEr was born February 18, 1893, in Coffey Township, Kenton County, Michigan, and died at a hospital in Saginaw, Michigan, October 29, 1963, where he had been a patient for two weeks following a fall from a wagon on his farm. Converted early in life, he served the Lord faithfully and sacrificed for the church. He moved from Gogebic to Cass City and established his home in the Saginaw district. He had indentured himself to many people. Beside his tithe, he paid a steady share on the organ for the church. He is survived by two sisters, five brothers, one half brother, and one half sister. Funeral service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. L. A. Wilson, assisted by a former pastor, Rev. E. F. Zollinger, and Rev. Harold Faye.

Can you give me information and scripture references that will prove to a Jehovah's Witness that his doctrine is not fully in accord with the Scriptures?

We were discussing forgiveness in our class and someone brought up the subject of self-forgiveness. Where can it be found in the Bible? How can you forgive yourself? We don't have the power.

Forgiving one's self would apply to cases where a person tended to self-reproach for sins committed in the past and kept brooding over them and then felt it would go on to this can lead to loss of faith in the forgiveness and acceptance of God, and can therefore be very dangerous spiritually. Victory lies along the line of remembering God's promises of complete forgiveness, as found in the New Testament:

Romans 5:1-2: "Therefore, we were justified by faith, so that we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have gained access by faith into this grace in which we stand, and we rejoice in our hope of sharing the glory of God."

Colossians 2:13-15: "When you were dead in your transgressions and the uncircumcision of your flesh, he made you alive through the Spirit when you were dead in your transgressions, having gone in through the blood of Christ. He forgave us all our sins, having canceled the record of debts that stood against us—and that record stood against us—in the unquenchable fire. He has now made us acceptable in the beloved.

How can a church be a “10 per cent” church? We have a lot of money going through our church, and the people give freely, thinking we can be a “10 per cent” church, but we never quite make it.

Your church board will just have to decide to send “10 per cent” of your church’s income for world evangelism. As your people give more, you will of course send more, but then you’ll have more to spend for the local and district interests of the church. This would apply to all the excess income that goes beyond the regular salary. Whatever the source and whether the individual be a minister or a layman, I don’t believe the church has a double standard in tithing.

Should pastors pay tithes out of the offerings they receive when holding revivals?

Tithes should be paid on all income (adjusted gross income) a minister which taxpayers will recognize as being the total income received minus only the direct and immediate expense of earning it. If a love offering is $250.00 and the preacher pays $100.00 for his ticket and from the meeting, his title would be $150.00. This would apply to all the excess income that goes beyond the regular salary, whatever the source and whether the individual be a minister or a layman. I don’t believe the church has a double standard in tithing.

General Assembly to Be Bilingual

The General Arrangements Committee for the General Assembly scheduled to convene in Portland, Oregon, June 18, has announced plans for simultaneous translation of proceedings and public services into Spanish, making this the first bilingual General Assembly in the history of the church.

Translators for the general sessions and evening services will be provided by the Spanish Department. Earphones and transistor radios will be available for Spanish-speaking Nazarenes and visitors, enabling them to follow the proceedings in Spanish.

Thanksgiving Offering Receipts Continue

Receipts averaging almost $30,000 per day from the fourteenth to the twelfth business day after the Thanksgiving Offering brought the total Thanksgiving Offering to $1,140,998.73 as of the close of business December 26, 1963.

General Treasurer John Stockton expresses high hopes that the total offering will surpass last Easter's record $1,370,000 and may pass the $1,500,000 mark. All churches and individuals still having Thanksgiving Offering funds are urged to send them in immediately, Dr. Stockton said.

Missionary Nurse Returns Home

Illness of an undetermined nature has forced the return of Missionary Nurse Carol Dimbath to her home in Dayton, Ohio. Miss Dimbath was serving on the staff of the Nazarene hospital in Swaziland until recently incapacitated. Further tests will be made to complete a medical diagnosis.

Three Couples to Foreign Assignments

The Charles Howards left January 4 for their first term of missionary service in Swaziland, Africa. Rev. and Mrs. Walter Grice left for Haiti on January 6, according to an announcement made by the Department of Foreign Missions. Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Rogers will sail early in February to Johannesburg for service in the Publishing House there.

First Building Under Way in Samoa

The first permanent Nazarene building in Samoa is now under construction under the supervision of Jarrell Garsee, overseas home missionary on the field. The building is a parsonage and is located on the same property on which a temporary chapel was constructed earlier. The project has been made possible by funds from the Nazarene Junior Fellowship. Mr. Garsee hopes to have the parsonage completed as the first unit of a further building program by the time of his furlough in the spring of 1964.

January Meetings Begin

Meetings related to the work of the General Board began last week with the sessions of the General Council of the Nazarene Foreign Missionary Society. The General N.Y.P.S. Council is in session January 13-16, and the Department of Foreign Missions begins its deliberations January 15.

The presidents of the Nazarene colleges gather January 29, as does the Committee on the Office of Evangelist. The General Board itself convenes at 2:00 p.m., January 20, in the auditorium of the new General Board Building.

Olivet Science Building Campaign over the Top

The largest single offering raised by a Nazarene college has been completed by the Olivet Nazarene College zone according to the report of Donald J. Gibson, vice-president in charge of field services and financial development. More than $1 million has been pledged throughout the Central Educational Zone for a science building on the college campus.

Of the campaign figures, $227,990 has been received in cash, with pledges bringing the total to $1,054,385. A church-by-church campaign yielded $700,134 in cash and pledges with eight of the fifteen districts on the zone over their goals. More than $100,000 came from the Kankakee, Illinois, business community.

The board of trustees will vote on immediate construction of the science building at their February 12 meeting together with the previously authorized student union building to be financed with a United States Government loan. The expected cost of the two buildings is in excess of $2 million. These will be the fourth and fifth new buildings to go up on the Olivet campus since 1960.

"Zip" Code Will Help Mail Delivery

The addition of subscribers' "zip" number to their re-subscription orders will increase the efficiency of mail handling by as much as one-third, a postal official recently told Everett Plever, Nazarene Publishing House organization manager.

Presently, a letter must be handled an average of eighteen times from deposit until delivery. The post office is in the process of installing electronic data-processing equipment to reduce the number of handling on each piece of mail. Using "zip" code will also aid in manual distribution of mail. Most of all, it will speed the delivery of the mail and eliminate many errors.

Braille Book Scheduled

A Verse a Day, a book of scriptures arranged by Mrs. J. C. Lafort for the purpose of being memorized, is being released this spring in Braille at no cost to blind persons by the Nazarene Publishing House. This is the third book which has been published for the blind. Also available is the quarterly periodical, The Holiness Evangel. Other books available in Braille are He Lifted Me, Jarrette AYcock, and The Unique Galliean, Russell V. Delong.

Plan World's Fair Exhibit

SANTA ANA, CALIF. (EP) —Wycliffe Bible Translators, Inc., announced at its headquarters here that it will erect a structure to be called the "WBT 2,000 Tribes" Building at the New York World's Fair.

Six other religious pavilions at the fair previously have been announced: the Protestant and Orthodox Center, the Vatican Pavilion, the Mormon Pavilion, the Billy Graham Pavilion, and the Christian Science Pavilion.

Hi,

My name is Gloria and I’m your new friend. I want to write you a little note each month and maybe sometime you can write one to me.

Have you ever had a new ball ☺, a new book 📚, or a new trike 🚴? Well, I’m sure you’ve had at least one of these—do you remember how well you tried to care for your new thing? Now you have another new thing—a new year [1964]. Try to make [1964] a very GOOD year by “taking care” to be the best boy or girl for Jesus every day.

Love,

Gloria
